A Guide to City of Claremont
Programs, Services, and Community Information

Introduction

Much of what Claremont is today is the direct result of actions taken by the community’s founders more than 100 years ago. Trees planted at the turn of the century now compete with nearby mountain peaks for dominance of the local skyline. The Claremont Colleges have become some of the nation’s most highly respected educational and cultural institutions. The historic central core remains a vital residential and retail district, one of the last true “downtowns” in the region. The spirit of Claremont’s original “town meeting” form of self-governance lives on in today’s active and involved citizenry—citizens who continue to build on the successes of the past in to ensure an even brighter future.

The first known inhabitants of the Claremont region were the Tongva-Gabrielino tribe. Archaeological evidence indicates that the Tongva-Gabrielino settlement Tooypinga was in the area of Indian Hill and Foothill. The Tongva/Gabrielenos inhabited a village in the area that is now Claremont located below the prominent mountain “Joāt” or “the Snowy Mountain.” The name Joāt refers to Mount San Antonio/Mt. Baldy as the place of snow. In 1771, as the Spanish period in California began, Mission San Gabriel was founded, stretching from the San Bernardino Mountains to San Pedro Bay.

After the missions were secularized by the Mexican government in 1834, most of the land within the present city limits became part of the Rancho San Jose owned by Ricardo Vejar and Don Ygnacio Palomares. Ygnacio’s sister, Maria Barbara, lived with her husband and family in an adobe house in the area now known as Memorial Park.

Jedediah Smith, the first European man to enter California overland, passed through the Claremont region in 1826. W. T. “Tooch” Martin, the first Anglo-European resident of Claremont, filed a claim on 156 acres near Indian Hill Boulevard in 1871. Martin lived by hunting game and keeping bees but eventually moved on as the population grew around him.

The Santa Fe Railroad provided the impetus for the creation of a community named Claremont in January 1887. It was one of about 30 town sites laid out between San Bernardino and Los Angeles in anticipation of a population explosion resulting from the arrival of the railroad. However, the real estate boom was short-lived. Claremont would have become one of a long list of local railroad “ghost towns” if not for the decision of the local land company to transfer its Hotel Claremont and 260 vacant lots to the recently-founded Pomona College in 1888.

The founders of Pomona College wanted to establish a school of “the New England style,” and the community that grew up around it also reflected the founders’ New England heritage. Even the form of local government they used, the Town Meeting, was brought with them from their hometowns in the East. Both the citizen involvement and the volunteerism on which the town meeting form of government is based continue to be hallmarks of Claremont today. The City of Claremont was officially incorporated on October 3, 1907.

At the same time the colleges were growing and expanding, so was the local citrus industry. Claremont growers established one of the earliest citrus cooperatives for marketing and shipping citrus fruit, a model that led to the organization of the Sunkist cooperative. At its height, the industry supported four citrus packing houses, an ice house, and a precooling plant along the railroad tracks in Claremont.

The industry continued to flourish until about 1950. The City, which covered about 3.5 square miles at its incorporation in 1907, now covers over 14 square miles. From a population of 100 in 1910, Claremont can claim over 37,000 residents today.

Early influences can be seen in the community today. There are lush remnants of citrus and oak groves and a physical character reminiscent of Claremont’s Spanish heritage and college-town influence. Claremont has many fine representatives of architectural periods. This diversity, sense of scale, and continuity singles it out as a unique community in Southern California.

Claremont has long been known as a cultural arts center for Pomona Valley. It continues to provide opportunities for a variety of cultural pursuits showcasing local talent, as well as attracting well-known national artists. Claremont residents recognize the importance of cultural activities for the enhancement of their quality of life.

Public Right-of-Way

For most residential properties in Claremont, the curb line adjacent to the street does not indicate the property line between the private property and the City's public right-of-way. The distance between the curb and property line varies throughout the City. This area of "public right-of-way" exists to allow for the installation of sidewalks, City street trees, public utility infrastructure, and other public improvements. This is the case, even where there is no sidewalk or where the front yard of the home goes all the way to the curb.

For available information on property lines, please contact the City's Engineering Division at (909) 399-5465.

Private Improvements in the Right-of-Way

It is important to know the location of your property line because it is illegal to install or construct certain types of private improvements in the public right-of-way without prior approval from the City. Among the projects that require City approval and a permit are:

- Structures such as fences, walls, patios, raised planters, etc., which encroach into the public right-of-way or exceed 36 inches in height;
- Driveway approaches;
- Modifications to original design concepts approved by the City;
- Signs;
- Lighting;
- Surfacing, except for grass or low groundcover;
- Curb, gutters, sidewalks, and pavement;
- Irrigation lines; and,
- Trees or shrubs, which will grow over twenty-four inches tall.

If in doubt about whether a permit is needed, call the City's Planning Division at (909) 399-5470.

Signs

Temporary signs, such as political posters, "for sale" signs, "for lease" signs, and similar advertisements are allowed on private property. These signs may not exceed six square feet.

Solicitation

Any person who goes door-to-door or place-to-place offering to sell any item, or soliciting money or anything of value, is required to obtain a solicitation permit from the City. Applications for non-commercial solicitation permits can be obtained from the Police Department. It is also unlawful for anyone to solicit at any location listed on the "Do Not Knock Registry." Residents can apply for inclusion on the registry with the City's Finance Department. Residents should immediately report to the Police Department all solicitors without a City-issued permit, or any solicitation that occurs at a location listed on the registry.

Street Trees

- The City maintains all City-owned trees. Residents should not attempt to trim, treat, or remove these trees.
- Residents are responsible for watering City trees adjacent to their property.
- The City's Reforestation Program runs from November to April of each year. If you would like a new City tree, please contact the Community Services Department.
- If you want to plant a tree, make sure to plant it on your property. You may contact the Community Development Department Engineering Division at (909) 399-5465 to inquire about your property lines.
- Residents should not affix anything to a City tree or use equipment or chemicals near a tree that might harm it.
- Bricks, rocks, cement, plastic weed barriers, or other similar material should not be placed near the base of a City tree.
- Avoid trenching around the perimeter of a City tree.
- Please call the Community Services Department at (909) 399-5431 or email trees@claremontca.gov for further information.

Vehicles

- Inoperable vehicles and/or vehicles that are not licensed or currently registered must be parked where they are not visible from the street or neighboring properties.
- Recreational vehicles, such as boats, campers, motor homes, and trailers (including utility trailers) must be parked or stored within a garage or in an interior side or rear yard that is enclosed with a non-transparent fence, a wall, or continuous row of shrubbery, not less than five feet high.
- Temporary RV parking permits, which are good for a maximum of 14 days per calendar year, may be obtained by calling the Community Improvement office at (909) 399-5499 or by stopping by the Community Development counter at City Hall. Permits are required for at home RV maintenance and trip preparation/return.

The City offers a Parkway Design Guide to assist residents in landscaping the public right-of-way in front of their homes. Find it on the City website.
